Kevin Carter Named Bank Relationship Manager for Digital Check

NORTHFIELD, Ill., Aug. 30, 2007 – Digital Check Corporation, a leading provider of electronic check scanners for the distributed check capture industry, announced the addition of Kevin Carter to its national sales team as business development manager. Carter’s new responsibilities are focused solely on expanding Digital Check’s presence within the tier one banks and emergent check 21 markets.

Carter brings over 20 years of experience working with large financial institutions. Most recently, Carter was instrumental in leading technology-based business development initiatives with tier one banks such as Bank of America, Synovus and Wachovia.

“Kevin’s proven track record of building long lasting relationships with customers best exemplifies why he was the right person to join our team,” said Jeff Hempker, national sales manager for Digital Check. “His style and reputation in the industry were also important factors in us pursuing Kevin for this important new role at Digital Check.”

In addition to the financial services industry, Carter also has extensive experience in healthcare, retail and commercial markets.

“His broad range of industry experience will strengthen our current customer relationships and create opportunities for both our company and our partners in the future,” said Tom Anderson, president and chief executive officer of Digital Check.
